Profero, Inc. Adds New Office to Accommodate Growth

CHICAGO, IL (April 6, 2007) — Profero Inc., a leader in Lean Enterprise methods, will be adding a new office space to their organization in April 2007. Profero will retain its main corporate headquarters in Chicago's Printer's Row neighborhood, but the new space in the historic Monadnock Building will allow for Profero's recent expansion and growth.

Profero has enjoyed a number of recent successes. In the past year, they have expanded their client base and given dozens of workshops, trainings, and lectures in locations across the country. They have also launched a 5S Supply site <www.5Ssupply.com>, and are gearing up to launch a redesign of their main website <www.ProferoInc.com>. All these projects have led to more jobs, added income, and a need for additional accommodations.

Profero's Tony Manos is optimistic about the added space. "In the past year, we've found that the office in Printer's Row wasn't large enough to accommodate all our clientele, staff, and storage needs. So, we decided that it was time to commit to additional space which will also foster better client-consultant interactions."

Built in 1893, the Monadnock building is a famed piece of Chicago Loop architecture, known for its "nationally acclaimed melding of historic character and modern technology." The Monadnock is also ideal for Profero since the building's varied suite-sizes can grow as Profero grows.

Manos stresses how the new Monadnock office will foster Profero's continued expansion; "The additional space points to our recent gains and will give us more flexibility to suit our growth," he says.
